Quickly organize claims accurately, consistently and efficiently

With companies desperate to find talent to fill open roles, claims departments are buried in work with no lifeline in sight. One of the biggest challenges of settling a claim is organizing it. At Mitchell, our demand package processing and management solutions automate this process, allowing your adjusters to confidently settle claims accurately, consistently and efficiently. Sorting, organizing, and processing everything needed to identify any red flags or issues is very complex and time consuming, for new or experienced claims handlers. Automating this manual workload can help lessen the pressure on your employees, leading to a higher rate of employee satisfaction, lower rate of human errors and improving consistency in settlement negotiations.

Average attorney demand packages are between 150-200 pages. Typical demand document types may include: the attorney's letter, medical bills, medical records, damage photos, accident reports, lost wages, and injury photos. To further complicate the process, 65-70% of third-party medical bills are non-standard and 45% are missing procedure and/or diagnosis codes.

Enlyte processes over 800,000 demands and 3.5M+ bills a year. Our automated solutions can help support adjusters' decision-making processes by providing organized, fully coded documents in an easy-to-digest format, providing confidence when settling cases.
